

ClearShield Low-M[®] (Low-Maintenance) Glass:

Resists limescale and dirt • Easy to clean • Looks newer for longer

The Sanderson, London

Shower cubicles in this chic hotel in London's West End were restored to their original pristine condition thanks to the award-winning ClearShield System. The project at the lavish urban retreat involved renovating and protecting sandblasted glass shower cubicles in 150 rooms.

Although an attractive and popular option, sandblasted glass is especially vulnerable to surface contamination such as finger marks, and as a result can soon lose its visual appeal, in addition to limescale. ClearShield was the solution, and is able to resist these problems.

The Dorchester, London

The ClearShield System brought the sparkle back to stylish shower screens at The Dorchester in London, one of the world's most luxurious hotels. Shower enclosures in selected rooms were renovated and then treated with ClearShield.

Limescale and dirt and greasy substances etching the surface made cleaning labour-intensive in the elegant art-deco style bathrooms on the second floor, so a solution had to be found. The Dorchester's in-house engineering team appointed Ritec UK to treat the shower glass with the proven ClearShield System. The result was an effective and long lasting solution.

Jury's Inn Heathrow, London

Guests staying at the new Jury's Inn Hotel in Heathrow have a clearer view through the ClearShield System.

During construction, contaminants bonded to the glass and proved impossible to remove using conventional means. However, Ritec UK were called in to provide the solution.

The contractor's Purchasing Manager comments: "In order to hand over the finished building to our client in pristine condition, we approached Ritec about restoring and protecting the glazed surfaces with its ClearShield System. We were so impressed with their demonstration that we decided to have the majority of glass treated."
